m they pretend that they did reign these Iiwt nineteen years.

Soldiers, rally around the standard of your ehii'f! Victory will advance at the double! The Kugle, with the national eoloura, will !ly from steeple to wteeple to the towers of Notre Dame, Then will you IK* nhle to display your honourable .Hears, Then will you he ahle to chum the credit of your deed.H» tut the liberator* of your country. In your old age» surrounded and honoured by your fellow-citi %cmH» all will reapeetfully listen whilt* ycnt narrate your great deedsj you will l>e able to say with pridf. "And I aba wtw one of that <»rand Army that twin* entered the walk of Vienna, of Home, of Ik^rlin, of Madrid, of Mtweow, and that eleanstul Paris from the wtnin left ttn it by truA» »on arul the pre^enee of the enemy!"

6th,(«ap:

Oitixeiw* I ntn dwply touched by your cifMrnmatrntionji. Your ho{«»,M will Ht' fulfilled: the nation'^ eauae will triumph once more. You art* right to rail me your Father; I live only for the honour and for the hitppmc of France, My return dwjwilM all your anxieties, guttnmtw* your property. To-day etjuality among tilt elands, nntl the right* you enjoyed for twenty-five yearn and that our father* to langetl for, iKKKmtc once mom a part of ytwr extntrne*.

W.U, (*w*noble:

Ctttwtw, when in my exile I learned all the minfor-tunes that weighed on the nation, that the right* of th* people were tmmpleti on, and that I ww rrpronrheti for my iriaetivity, I Icwt not ft momentt J ewlmrketl on a frail l, I cro»(«Hi the mm amid th« wuruhtpjt of varitm* iw« , I landed on the soil of the fatherland, and 1 thought